WESTERN CIDER. TAYLAR ROBBINS

AN APPLE A DAY

The story behind Western Cider—Missoula's first cidery.

When you enter the brightly lit, crisp and cozy taproom of Missoula's Western Cider, the place seems familiar and welcoming. Music softly hums in the background, the rustic decor is perfectly in-tune with the atmosphere, and the place is buzzing with cheerful energy. Western Cider was Missoula's first-ever cidery, which quickly became a community go-to for good drinks, fun, year-round events and craft markets. The ciders produced here continue to expand throughout the Pacific Northwest and beyond. Co-owner and orchardist, Michael Billingsley, sat down with Destination Missoula to discuss the origins of award-winning Western Cider and why cider itself is something we should all be excited about and on the lookout for.

"It started from the orchard side of things," Michael explained in the Western Cider backyard—a space just as welcoming and charming as the indoor taproom. The sun warmed the cozy wooden tables, the green grass and the small line of apple trees that separate the covered and uncovered sections of the patio.

So, we had to know—what came first, the love of ciders or the love of apples? For Michael, it was a little bit of both. He said he didn't know what he wanted to grow, just that he always gravitated toward orchard plants. And then he tasted his first good cider. "That is when everything clicked and fell into place. It was an "ah-ha" moment."

It was down in the Bitterroot at Montana Cider Works where Michael discovered the beverage that would soon become his life's work. Lee McAlpine, the Cider Master at Cider Works, was the catalyst for his newfound obsession; she crafted a very delicious and very different type of cider than ones Michael had tried before. "True cider," he called it. Not apple juice, or the fizzy, store-bought kind. Something else entirely. Turns out, it was the apples. Lee used a particular variety that couldn't be found in Montana. So, Michael decided to learn all there was to know about trees, cider making techniques and the history of the brew in order to jumpstart his new life as an apple grower and cider maker.

His research took him to Spain and France, where cider has been made for over a thousand years. Since cider is derived from the apple trees, soil and climate are huge factors in apple production. But luckily for Michael, and for Missoulians, Montana's climate and history is prime for growing delicious apples. Michael knew that cider was going to take off, but he took a huge leap of faith in deciding to put all of his apples in one basket, literally.

After years of growing trees and experimenting with various methods, Michael partnered with Matt LaRubbio and Jon Clarenbach to open the doors of Western Cider in 2017. But creating a drink market for cider, which was essentially non-existent in Missoula at the time, was no cake walk. It was critical for Western Cider to get the community involved and to inform them about what makes cider so special. The Western Cider tasting room always has 12 different ciders on tap, aimed at educating people and allowing them to see firsthand how diverse the drinks can be.

Western Cider sources all of their apples as locally as possible. Some come from Michael's orchard in the Bitterroot, while others come from the old orchards in and around Missoula. However, Western Cider is producing too much cider to only use Montana apples these days; so the cidery has expanded their sourcing to Washington and Oregon as well. And to Michael, this means a greater variety of flavor. "No two are alike. There could be 20 different cideries in Missoula just like there are 20 different breweries and we could all be making different ciders."

The future for Western Cider is bright. Their building is located on the banks of the Clark Fork, a short distance from historic downtown and directly across the walking bridge from the Sawmill District. So, during your stay in Missoula, take a seat at the bar and order some of Montana's best cider—you can thank us later.

LOCAL CULINARY CREATIVITY

Meet the man behind the flavors of Second Set Bistro.

Nestled in our picturesque little mountain town is Second Set Bistro—a beloved culinary gem that has captured the hearts and taste buds of locals and visitors alike. At the helm of this delectable adventure is the talented and personable Chef Raz Schneider, whose unique approach to cuisine has made Second Set Bistro a must-visit destination for foodies.

Chef Raz's journey in the culinary world started in his late teens at the iconic Miner's Saloon in Cooke City, Montana. It was here that he developed his passion for cooking and honed his skills in the kitchen before moving to Missoula in 2019 to open Second Set Bistro.

Chef Raz has a knack for tapping into a unique fusion of flavors and techniques that go beyond the typical Montana cuisine. Drawing inspiration from Asian, Southwestern and other culinary traditions from around the world, he and his staff have cultivated a menu that is both wildly innovative and super delicious.

"I wanted to create something that was inventive and exciting, like the second set of an album or concert. Like, it can be kind of rough in that first act but if you stick around for the second set, you'll get that big hug out of it at the end. It's improv, which is what we do," said Chef Raz, whose passion for music and creativity shines through in his exceptional recipes.

What makes Chef Raz such a fixture in the Missoula restaurant scene is his warm and welcoming nature. He often leaves the kitchen to chat with his guests, eager to know if his latest creation is a hit among customers and to answer any questions about food that may not be commonly seen in Missoula. From Chinese Mapo Tofu to Asian Crab, as well as locally sourced produce and meat, Second Set Bistro is a haven for foodies who love to explore unique flavors and textures.

One of the highlights of Second Set Bistro's culinary offerings is the "Bite of the Market," a summertime treat where Chef Raz and his team head down to Missoula's Saturday farmers market to find fresh ingredients, create a one-of-a-kind recipe and serve it up to customers that evening. It's a testament to Chef Raz's commitment to using locally sourced and seasonal ingredients in his culinary creations, and it keeps customers eagerly anticipating what surprise meal will be on the menu next.

Second Set Bistro

So, whether you're a seasoned foodie or someone who loves to explore new flavors, a visit to Second Set Bistro is a must. Chat with Chef Raz, savor his inventive dishes and get to know Missoula's culinary journey, which is as ever-evolving and creative as the community itself. As Chef Raz says, "It's the people that drew me here—it's hard to describe unless you experience it for yourself."

Chef Raz's

SHRIMP AND GARLIC RECIPE

INGREDIENTS (YIELDS 4 SERVINGS):

- + 1 loaf of bread (Chef Raz got his from Grist!)
- + 1/3 cup olive oil
- + 4 garlic cloves, cut into thin slices
- + 1/4 teaspoon crushed red pepper flakes
- + 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- + 2 pounds large shrimp, shelled and frozen
- + 1 1/4 teaspoons salt
- + 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- + 3 tablespoons dry sherry
- + 2 tablespoons lemon juice and fresh lemon rind
- + 3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
- + Pinch of sea salt flakes (for garnish)

DIRECTIONS:

Step 1: Heat a cast iron skillet on high and place thickly sliced bread directly into the pan for several minutes on each side. Once the bread shows charring on both sides, remove from the skillet and set aside. Turn the skillet heat on low.

Step 2: Add the oil and garlic to the skillet. Allow the garlic to cook at a low temp while you prep the shelled shrimp in the next step.

Step 3: Remove your shelled shrimp from the freezer and add salt.

Step 4: Add the shrimp to the skillet with the oil and garlic, poach the shellfish for ~4 mins, then turn off the stove but keep the skillet on the same burner.

Step 5: Caramelize the sherry by adding it into the shrimp and garlic skillet and stir for one minute.

Step 6: Add the crushed red pepper flakes, paprika, salt and pepper to taste. Stir.

Step 7: Remove the skillet from the burner and serve in a bowl, with the charred bread on the side.

Step 8: Add the lemon juice on top of the shrimp and garnish with lemon rind, chopped parsley and a pinch of flaky sea salt.

LOCALLY CRAFTED

We take our drinks seriously around here, and we've got the award-winning craft beverages to prove it. Whatever you're looking for—a cold beer, a smooth whiskey, or a crisp cider—we've got you covered with local breweries, distilleries, and cideries. So pull up a chair, strike up a conversation with a local, and savor the flavors of Missoula.

BREWERIES

BAYERN BREWING

Bayern Brewing was founded in 1987, making it the oldest operating brewery in Montana. Their food and brews are said to be inspired by the German state of Bavaria, and they brew in strict accordance to the German Law of Purity (Reinheitsgebot) of 1516.

OUT TO LUNCH, CARAS PARK

MISSOULA'S MOBILE FOOD SCENE

Your guide to food truck fare.

These mobile restaurants are a staple of our city and offer a never-ending array of delicious options. Whether you're in the mood for a spicy chicken sandwich, beef kabobs, or an ice cream stuffed doughnut, you're sure to find something that hits the spot. Some food trucks are regulars outside of our local breweries and taphouses, while others make appearances at special events, like Out to Lunch and Downtown Tonight in Caras Park, or the farmers market. It's a fun adventure tracking down your favorites and sampling all the different flavors Missoula has to offer.

Want to plan ahead and see what's in store? Check out destinationmissoula.org/blog/food-trucks for a sneak peek of some of the local food trucks you might see around town.
